

Jacek Tebinka is Associate Professor and Head of the Department of History and Political Thought at the University of Gdansk. He has written numerous publications, for which he received an Award from the Minister of Education as well as one from the KLIO Historical Books Publishers. His areas of expertise are British-Polish relations in the twentieth century, the role of special forces in diplomacy and the history of the Cold War.